I'll walk you through the whole process step-by-step in the pages below.

We'll also take a mini dive into the power of habits – and how to use science to custom design your habits, one step at a time!

Surprising Fact:

As many as 45% of the things you do each day are done out of HABIT – without you even giving much thought to it!

ROUTINES & habits

From the minute you wake up in the morning until you go to bed at night, you operate out of habit.

That doesn't mean you're acting mindlessly, but it does mean you've already created many go-to routines that have become ingrained in your daily life.

And that's EXCELLENT news ... because we're going to tap into the power of those existing routines to help you move closer towards your goals every day!

Routines happen so automatically that you might not even think about them as "routines."

For example, maybe you take a vitamin at breakfast ... floss your teeth before you brush them ... make your bed as soon as you get up ... or grab a workout on the way home from work.

Our goal with this mini guide is to help you seamlessly blend new healthy habits into your existing routines, so they become part of your daily 45%.

We're not interested in short-term fixes ... we're all about creating lifelong change that lasts!

HOW TO Use This Guide

This is more than just a guide. You can use this as a workbook to write your goals and habits down as we go along. Simply repeat this process any time you want to integrate a new habit into your life!

Five Simple Steps to New Habits

"Ask yourself: What would this look like if it were easy?" – Tim Ferris

This proven, easy-to-follow process will have you conquering your goals faster than you can imagine!

➔ Step 1: What's Your Ultimate Goal?

What do YOU want to achieve – what is your goal? It could be anything!

Ultimate Goals Examples:

1. Reduce stress levels by 50% within 60 days (and keep it low)
2. Lose 15kg within 6 months
3. Run a 5K without stopping in the next 90 days
4. Save $1,000 in the next 12 months

How to Set SMART Goals: (a quick overview)

One of the most time-tested ways to help design great goals is to use the SMART philosophy. Your goals should be Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Relevant, and Time-Bound.

SPECIFIC: Nail down exactly what you want to achieve. For example: “I want to be able to do 10 pushups with perfect form within 60 days” is better than “I want to be able to do push-ups.”

MEASURABLE: You should be able to know exactly WHEN you’ve met your goal. Example: “I want to be able to run 1 km without stopping” is better than “I want to get into better cardio shape.”

ATTAINABLE: Your goal should be within the realm of possibility. “I want to lose 20kg this month” is not realistic, but “I want to lose 5 kg this month” might be.

REALISTIC: Your goal should have meaning for YOU and align with your abilities and interests. For instance, if you dislike running, setting a goal of running wouldn’t be motivating. But if you enjoy bike riding, setting a goal to ride 3 times a week for 30 minute sessions would be a good start.

TIMELY: You should set a deadline or end date for your goal. Samples: “I will do 30 strength training sessions during the next 90 days.” Or “I will run 1km non-stop within the next 30 days.” Or “I will lose 3kg the 1st of next month.”

What is your #1 Goal?

Write it here:

➤ Step 2: WHY do you want to achieve this goal?

Take some time to think about exactly WHY this goal matters to you.

What's so important about it? What does achieving it MEAN to you? How will you feel once you've achieved your goal? How will it change your life?

Will reaching your goal change how you feel about yourself? Will it affect the energy you bring to your work or relationships? Will you feel more confident, healthier, stronger? Go deep on this one!

Writing this down will unlock powerful feelings that will help push you past any resistance that your "body" may give you along the way.

I want to reach this goal because:

Step 3: Choose ONE NEW HABIT to help you achieve your ultimate goal.

Depending on your goal, you might come up with a huge list of "ALL THE THINGS" you need to do to make your goal a reality.

But for right now, we're just going to focus on ONE ... and we're going to turn that ONE into a new habit!

In fact, one of the strategies that has been very successful for our clients is to simply integrate ONE new habit, celebrate the win and then set a new one. Imagine doing this in your own life ... if you simply created one new habit every month for a year, you'll have installed 12 healthy new habits. How incredible is that?! Let's break it down with some examples:

#1.Goal: Reduce stress levels by 50% in 60 days (and keep it low).

Your Habit: You can't avoid all of the stress in your life, but you can come up with healthy ways to reduce its impact on you. Meditation is a proven method! Your first habit could be to block off 10 minutes everyday to meditate (you can do it in one sitting, or break it into two 5-minute chunks.)

#2. Goal: Lose 15kg within 6 months.

Your Habit: The very first thing you need to do to lose weight is NOT cutting out entire food groups or going on a crazy yo-yo diet. Instead, your first step may be to eat portion-controlled meals that put you on-track for steady weight loss.

It could also be as simple as swapping out those 2 sodas you drink every day for water instead! Choose whatever habit is the best for YOU.

#3. Goal: Run a 5K without stopping in the next 90 days.

Your Habit: The FIRST thing you'll need to do is not go out to buy new running shoes. It's blocking off time in your schedule ... and then RUNNING during that time! For example: new habit could be running for 30 minutes, 4 days per week (and you've cleared your schedule to make it happen).

#4. Goal: Save $1,000 in the next 12 months.

Your Habit: Simple! Your new habit is to transfer $19.23 from your bank account into a separate savings account every week over the next 12 months.

What is your ONE new target habit?

Step 4: How can you make your new habit as EASY AS POSSIBLE?

This is all about setting yourself up for success by creating an environment that supports your new habit.

Here are a few examples of the Success Steps you can take for each goal:

#1. Goal: Reduce stress levels by 50% in 60 days (and keep it low).

Your Success Step: If meditation is your new habit, you can try downloading an app that helps you learn breathing techniques or takes you through a guided meditation. Check out Breathe, Calm, or Headspace.

#2. Goal: Lose 15kg within 6 months.

Your Success Step: Since the one habit to achieve your goal was to use portion control, maybe you're committing to using a smaller plate for your meals at home. If you're out to eat, order a large entree as your main, or just have a small main. (pro tip: you can also request to not be shown the deserts! Many restaurants have them on a separate menu.

#3. Goal: Run a 5K without stopping in the next 90 days.

Your Success Step: It could be laying out your running gear and having your running shoes by the door so you can quickly gear up for your run first thing in the morning – or packing your gym bag and putting it in the car.

#4. Goal: Save $1,000 in the next 12 months.

Setting up an automatic transfer from your bank account to your savings account takes the manual effort out of saving money.

If you do this, you won't even have to remember about transferring the money each week – the technology takes care of it for you.

What will make your new habit as easy as possible?

Why?

➤ Step 5: Be prepared for slip-ups.

This is a BIG ONE. In fact, it might be the second most important step of your new journey! (The first is getting started.)

You must have a plan AHEAD OF TIME for exactly how you will get back on-track if (and when) you miss a day or two of working out, meditating, or you don't follow your eating plan.

The fact is, the path to your goal will be filled with ups and downs. It's how you handle the "downs" that will make all the difference. Knowing what your obstacles might be and having a solution on hand if or when it happens.

Don't make it a big deal or beat yourself up if you slip off track.

Just pick it back up RIGHT AWAY. Not TOMORROW. Today.

For example, if you slip off your plan and overindulge at lunch ... that doesn't mean you might as well have whatever you want for dinner, and then start again "tomorrow."

Make sure your VERY next meal is back on track with your plan.

These are five things that :do when I fall off track:

1. I remind myself of my WHY and the reason this goal is so important to me in the first place.
2. I acknowledge what happened, and ask myself (without judgment): "What's the real reason I slipped up?" Was it too demanding, did I set unrealistic expectations, was my routine off, or was it something else?
3. I ask myself: "What can I learn from this situation?"
4. Then, I put new boundaries in place so I can do a better job of setting myself up for success going forward.
5. I work hard to get back on track RIGHT AWAY. I don't wait until "tomorrow."

"Leave nothing for tomorrow which can be done today."
- Abraham Lincoln

How I will get back on track ...

➤ Bonus Step 6: Reward yourself!

Beyond the actual reward of achieving your goal, how will you celebrate your accomplishment!?

Adding a fun element like a reward for reaching your goal can make the process even more exciting.

Will you get a new pair of training shoes or new training gear? New jeans or an entire outfit? Or maybe you will treat yourself to a massage or spa day!

A few powerful tips:

1. Make sure the reward is healthy and aligned with your goals – for example, if you've set a nutrition goal, rewarding yourself with cake or ice cream sends a mixed message to your subconscious.
2. Remember you are in this for the long haul! Your reward is not a finish line – it's simply a positive acknowledgement of your progress.
3. Set boundaries for yourself outlining exactly how (and when) you earn the reward ... and stick with them!

STEP-BY-STEP PROCESS

to Massive Change

Have you ever gone into full “beast mode” and tried to switch up your entire lifestyle overnight?

This works for some people (rarely!) ... but for most of us, it's not realistic or sustainable.

We end up beating ourselves up for a lack of discipline or motivation. The reality is though, that it has more to do with our automatic habits and routines (that 45%) that ends up derailing our success.

Setting yourself up to succeed is EVERYTHING! That's why we recommend layering in just a single new habit every month.

Layering is a time-tested, researched-backed strategy. In fact, there's even a name for it ... it's called habit stacking.

HABIT

Stacking 101

Do you remember those existing routines and habits I was talking about earlier?

Well you can actually integrate your new habits into your existing routine so that they become automatic, also!

This process is outlined in the book Atomic Habits by James Clear.

An example of an EXISTING routine:

Do you wake up in the morning, drink a glass of water, and then take a shower?

Here's how to HABIT STACK that routine:

As soon as you're done with your shower, you meditate for 10 minutes. So your NEW routine is: wake up, drink water, shower, and then meditate!

Another example would be to add running to your “finish work” routine. As soon as you finish your work day, you could change your clothes and head outside for your run.

If you want to develop a NEW habit of planning your meals, stack it on top of your “cleaning the kitchen” routine each night.

See how that works!?

HOW LONG DOES IT REALLY TAKE to Create a Habit?

There's no one "right" answer when it comes to how long it takes to create a habit.

A famous study published in the European Journal of Social Psychology found that it can take between 18 and 254 days, depending on the person and the habit they are trying to create.

But ... there is ONE factor that seems to shorten the amount of time it takes for a behavior to become automatic – and that's getting in more repetitions!

Example: Let's say you decide to begin meditating. If you commit to meditating 5 or 6 times a week, it likely will become a habit faster than if you meditate just 2 to 3 times a week.

Basically, what this all boils down to is that it's not necessarily an amount of TIME that it takes to create the habit ... rather it's the NUMBER of times you perform the action.

Just keep that in mind as you're planning out your habits and goals!
